Healthcare and Well-Being for Your Pets

Here at Glaven Veterinary Practice we have a more personal and friendly approach to animal care. We offer not only first class veterinary treatment for the animal community, but also help and advice to our clients on preventative care for their pets. Animal medicine has advanced immensely since this well-established veterinary practice began its life many years ago. We are proud to say, that today our professional and dedicated team of staff are here to provide your pet with the expert care they deserve. So from basic vaccinations to major surgery, we can help ensure that your pet stays healthy and happy. We look forward to meeting new and existing clients to our surgeries, along with involving you and your pets in the world of animal care.

PAST and PRESENT The roots of this well-established veterinary practice began back in the sixties when we were known as 'a mixed practice' that treated small and large animals. However, times change and in the late nineties our practice decided to concentrate on the care of dogs, cats and other small companion animals. Today, the partnership of Bridget Pearson, who qualified from London in 1980, and Michael Charles from Liverpool in 1984, continue to focus on the ever-increasing world of small animal medicine, to provide the Holt and Wells communities with modern veterinary care for their pets. Glaven Veterinary Practice look forward to 'Expanding to Meet the Future'!

Guidance is given on exercise, diet, weight control, worming, flea treatments and they can even show you how to clean your pet's teeth. Puppy and Kitten Checks are also available for the new arrivals, and we never forget our well-respected older members of the animal world at our Aged Pet Clinic. Is your pet insured?

Veterinary medicine is now more sophisticated, enabling us to diagnose and treat a wide range of conditions, which may previously have been incurable. However, such treatments can incur expensive procedures, so we recommend that you consider life-long insurance for your pet. Please ask at reception for further details.
